The Taco Project opens second location in new Boyce Thompson Center

The Taco Project, a Mexican restaurant based out of Tarrytown, officially opened its second location in the Boyce Thompson Center in Yonkers on August 21. The Taco Project offers traditional Mexican cuisine — primarily a variety of street tacos and burritos — in a casual dining space. The official grand opening on the new restaurant took place August 29, with the co-owners of The Taco Project, Yonkers City officials, and representatives from Simone Development Companies (who developed the center) in attendance. The restored Boyce Thompson Center, located on the site of the former Boyce Thompson Institute, officially opened May 23. The center is now offering 85,000 square feet of space for restaurants, retail, businesses, medical practices and banking. In addition to The Taco Project, Starbucks, Japanese sushi restaurant ISO, and Italian restaurant Fortina have also leased space in the center.
